___ I stepped into the character's shoes (fish or frog) to help me see problems, wishes, and dreams from a perspective other than my own.

___ I created mental images to try to see from a perspective other than my own.

___ I understand how to use another author's work to help me improve my writing or try something new.

___ When researching, I kept in mind what the animal may think and feel about the different topics I was learning about (such as diet, habitat, etc.).

___ When constructing my diary entries, I used critical thinking skills to think from the perspective of the animal I chose and make my entries as realistic to the animal as possible.
